Vote to End Strike of Shopmen Expected Today

Confidence Felt in Washington That Action to That End Is Near.

JEWELL REMAINS SILENT

Reports Coming From Others of Policy Committee Indicate That Agreement Has Been Reached on Seniority; No Provision for Wage Advance.

By Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 13—A decision on settlement of the railway shopmen's strike was predicted again today as a possibility late this afternoon as the general policy committee of the federated shop crafts went into session at 10:30 o'clock.

It was virtually the same prediction made yesterday morning.

"We hope to reach a decision today," S. M. Jewell, head of the Railway Employes Department of the American Federation of Labor, said. "I can predict nothing further than that."

Union leaders said last night the committee was near a vote on its policy proposal when the committee was ouited from its hall by an unyielding janitor and the management could not extend the time for the hall which had been rented for the evening to another organization.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 — Confidence was expressed today by persons in close touch with the rail strike situation that action would be taken soon in the meeting in Chicago, of strike leaders which would go far toward ending the walkout of shopmen which became effective July 1.

Several high administration officials were are watching the meeting in Chicago of the shop crafts general policy committee and by these officials the belief was expressed that action was a matter of hours.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13—With predictions favoring acceptance, the separate plan for ending the railway shopmen's strike on nearly 60 roads will be voted on today by the shop crafts' policy committee of 30, which has been in session at the Masonic Temple here since Monday morning.

While B. M. Jewell, chief strike leader, declined to comment on prospects, others were less reticent. Forecasts were based on guarded expressions from men who participated in the deliberations behind barred doors.

One persistent report emanating from these sessions is that one agreement only is under consideration and that this has been submitted by the several railways as a group.

The proposal under discussion by the policy committee, it was said, disposes of the seniority problem but makes no provisions for wage increases. The wage issue, raised when the United States Railroad Labor Board slashed nearly $60,000,000 from the shop workers' annual pay, was one of three grievances upon which the strike was voted.

"I believe we'll muster the votes necessary to sanction the peace proposals submitted to us and I believe we'll do it today," said one of Mr. Jewell's conferees.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13—With more than 9,000 affidavits charging assault by strikers and strike sympathizers on railroad workers in every section of the country, the government yesterday launched its endeavor to show a concerted effort by the striking shop craft to interfere with interstate traffic by driving railroad employes from their work. Overruling the objections of attorneys for D. M. Jewell and John Scott, the strike leaders, Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson admitted the affidavits in evidence for the time being, at least in the hearing on the government bill for a temporary injunction against 200 shop craft officials and their followers.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13—Efforts of attorneys for the striking shop crafts leaders to force all the readings of additional hundreds of 20,000 affidavits of violence produced by the government in support of its injunction bill failed again today.

The government rejected all overtures for speeding up the case by eliminating or classifying the affidavits and Judge James A. Wilkerson sustained the prosecution's right to the broadest latitude in its efforts to show by a chain of nation-wide outbreaks what it claims is a concerted conspiracy to destroy interstate traffic by intimidation of railway employes.

The court took occasion, however, to warn the attorneys for the government that the temporary restraining order now in force will expire September 22 and cannot be extended even if the present hearing on an injunction to replace it is not completed.

Conference Report On Bonus in House

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The conference report on the soldier bonus bill was presented in the House today by Chairman Fordney of the House managers. It is the plan of the leaders to call it up tomorrow with the hope of final action during the day.

After it is disposed of by the House the report will be sent to the Senate.

"SHOOT TO KILL" ORDER OF SHERIFF, AFTER DYNAMITERS

"Shoot to Kill" was the order given by Sheriff I. J. Shaw Tuesday afternoon to state troopers following reports which came to him that dynamiters recently had made their escape because the officers did not wish to inflict mortal wounds upon them.

Sheriff Shaw, in explanation of the order to the troopers, made it plain that the order did not warrant any promiscuous shooting on the part of the officers but that after they were positive the fleeing parties had attempted dynamiting, they were to bring them to a halt even if it was necessary to shoot to kill.

Dynamiting outrages have grown to such an extent in Fayette county that the officers are determined to "get" the guilty parties. While no loss of life has resulted from the numerous dynamitings in the county since the strike became effective, the property damage has been heavy and in several instances train crews and occupants of houses have narrowly escaped with their lives.

In the majority of the cases, the dynamiters traveled in high powered automobiles and in several instances had deadly weapons been employed the outlaws might have been halted.

A number of state troopers operating in plain clothes have been scattered throughout the county and the sheriff has ordered them to be specially vigilant for dynamiters. He has also assured them that if they carry out his orders to "Shoot to Kill" they will have the unlimited support of his office. The order was the subject of much comment among the troopers last evening who welcomed it heartily in their campaign for apprehending the dynamiters.

Townsend, Lodge, Poindexter Lead In Primary Races

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—The three Republican incumbent senators involved in Tuesday's nine state primaries overcame strong opposition by apparently safe margins, according to incomplete returns available today.

Senator Townsend of Michigan led the nearest of his three opponents, Herbert J. Baker, by 14,244, with the vote approximately 40 per cent complete.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts rolled up 10,000 majority over Joseph Walker, with returns two-thirds complete.

Senator Poindexter of Washington led the nearest of his five opponents, George Lambing of Seattle, by 3,154 on returns 15 per cent complete. Mrs. Axtell was fourth in the race.

BOSTON, Sept. 13.—Returns from the state complete gave for Republican governor, Allen, 73,682, Cox, 216,936; for Republican senator, Lodge 209,577; Walker, 68,437.

Steady Recovery Of Mrs. Harding Now Is Expected

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—General appearances indicate as rapid improvement in Mrs. Harding's condition as can reasonably be expected, a bulletin issued at the White House shortly after 9 o'clock today said.

The bulletin follows:

"Mrs. Harding's condition at 8 A. M.: Temperature, 98.8; pulse, 88; respiration, 26.

She had quite comfortable night, sleeping longer with less interruption. Elimination increasing. Tenderness and swelling slowly subsiding. General appearances indicate as rapid improvement as can reasonably be expected."

Fire at Puritan Is Thought Incendiary

State police, stationed at Masontown, Tuesday evening were called to Puritan, the scene of a dynamiting last week, to investigate what is believed to have been an incendiary fire, which completely destroyed one of the houses owned by the Puritan Coal Company.

The house, which is valued at $2,000, was vacated several days ago by a family of striking miners who were evicted. No new tenants had moved into the house.

To Enforce Curfew.

City police have been instructed to enforce the curfew ordinance which demands that all children be off the city streets at 9:30 o'clock. Children found out after that hour, unless accompanied by their parents are to be taken to the police station if they refuse to go to their homes. Police are to take the names of any children on the streets in violation of the ordinance and their parents will be prosecuted.

TROLLEY TRAFFIC OVER BRIDGE WILL END SUNDAY NIGHT

Transfer of Passengers Necessary During Completion of Repairs.

RESTRICTION ON LOADS

Street car traffic over the Youghiogheny river bridge will end on Sunday night. The final car will make its journey across the structure at that time and for a week to 10 days passengers on the trolleys will have to cross the river on foot.

The repairs have been made as far as possible without interrupting the street car service and from Monday on the work will be pushed as rapidly as possible in order to restore the carrier to the traveling public.

The West Penn Railways Company has been prepared to meet this emergency. Sidetracks have been put down at a point along the South Side line near Crescent where the cars operating from the eastern side of the river will be kept over night. The other end of the division will be operated from the shops on the West Side.

Passengers on the through cars will have to transfer at the bridge making the journey on foot. Those coming into the city on the Phillips and Vanderbilt cars will only be hauled as far as First street, West Side.

It had been reported that the street car traffic would be tied up for 30 days but the railways officials say they have been given to understand the work will be completed in a much shorter time. New steel girders and supports will span the Baltimore & Ohio tracks when the job is finished.

Automobile and pedestrian traffic will not be tied up and provisions have already been made to care for this. A super-structure of wood has been built over which automobiles and other vehicles will run. This is about three feet higher than the normal level of the bridge and the eastern approach is very steep.

A number of persons complained to the city safety department about it this morning and drivers of some heavy trucks refused to take their machines over it. Some are afraid of running off it onto the Baltimore & Ohio tracks below and the contractor may be asked to put up a heavier guard rail than the present one.

State Factory Inspector J. S. Darr will be asked to pass on the temporary roadway. He was out of the city this morning.

Beginning September 14 a restriction will be placed on traffic over the Crawford avenue bridge, according to announcement today by the company having the work of repairing the structure under way.

The bridge will be closed to loads of over five tons, gross, which will include the weight of the truck or other vehicle.

Temperature Down For First Time In Many Weeks

Following the heavy rain of Monday night, which ended a long dry spell, the weather has been considerably cooler and yesterday was one of a lower temperature than has been experienced in many weeks. The mercury did not rise over 72 degrees at any time in the day and during last night fell as low as 52 degrees.

The cooler atmosphere is a constant reminder that only two more days remain in the straw hat season. Many who contended they would not give up the light head pieces because of the hot weather are now more agreeable. Light top coats were worn last evening with comfort.

'Obey' May Be Dropped From Marriage Vows

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 13. The House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church Tuesday voted in favor of taking "obey" from the marriage ceremony and voted to refer the proposal to eliminate "with my worldly goods I thee endow" from the ceremony back to the commission which submitted it.

The vote to eliminate "obey" was 90 to 27. If the House of Deputies concurs the proposed change will be subject to approval at the general convention three years hence before becoming effective.

AUTOS COLLIDE

Truck Crashes Into Edward Louden's Machine on South Side.

An automobile collision occurred last evening about 6:30 o'clock at the corner of Race street and Patterson avenue, when a large produce truck owned by Nick Hills, ran into a four passenger car driven by Edward Louden, and knocked it from the street car tracks onto the lawn of a home nearby, completely wrecking it.

The truck was going south on Race street and Mr. Louden was crossing that street when the truck hit the rear of his car.

None of the occupants of either car were injured aside from a bruise on the right leg suffered by Mr. Louden.

IS ANXIOUS TO VINDICATE SELF, KEPHART ASSERTS

Many Things Arose During War and After to Make Necessary Unusual Steps.

INFORMATION NOT READY

HARRISBURG, Sept. 13. - While here on his way to Philadelphia, former State Treasurer H. M. Kephart said he would be prepared to meet any charges and would welcome a chance to vindicate himself. He said:

"I have not read the opinion and report of the attorney general, but I want to say I will welcome the opportunity to vindicate myself before a jury. There were many things that arose during the war and afterward that made necessary unusual steps which I believed were imperative and proper during such emergency. I shall ask my attorney at Harrisburg to accept service for me on any charges preferred."

The attorney general's department is busy preparing the information in the charge of failure to keep a "correct and accurate" account of the State's money to be preferred against Kephart and does not contemplate any probe of state offices. Officials of the department today refused to make any statement in the absence of Attorney General George E. Alter, but pointed out that the auditor general was the only official authorized to make audits and that the attorney general was not engaging in such matters.

Owing to Deputy Attorney General George Ross Hill being required in court in the coal tax cases Tuesday he did not get a chance to complete the information against Kephart, and planned to finish it with District Attorney Philip S. Mover today.

Senator Pepper at Westmoreland County Sunday School Meet

KIWANIANS DINE

"Milk" Is Topic of Discussion at Weekly Luncheon.

The Connellsville Kiwanis Club met in its usual weekly luncheon today and heard an interesting talk on "milk," given by J. I. Clark, manager of the Farmers' Co-operative Dairy Association.

Seventy members and four guests were present. The silent booster was Ross Gilles, Miller Haney, Emerson Bell and Orin Lawrence, testified concerning Prof. Jensen's trips to the church yard on the nights of May 10 and 13, last. They charged no wrong doing, saying that Jensen got out of the car to look into the church window and outside of this sat in the car with a woman. On one occasion they said they devised a hoax in the form of a dummy suspended on a tree by a pulley. As the couple sat in the car the quartet, concealed in the bushes, lowered the dummy and the woman gave a loud scream. Jensen stepped on the gas and speeded out of the haunt, only to be bombarded with some aged hen fruit.

Jensen denied this escapade, saying on this night he was attending a school meeting preparatory to the commencement exercises. He admitted that he frequently took Miss Hazel Warne of South Brownsville, his fiancee since last spring, out for auto rides but denied any misconduct.

Price War Among Fruit Dealers Gets One Into Court

An interesting war, in which the consumer is profiting, is being waged between local fruit dealers. One man, who has received several cars of peaches, apples and pears began to sell his product at the selling price below those demanded at the fruit stores. To check him another fruit man, who conducts several stores of his own and also does a wholesale business opened up a street market at a still lower price.

Then the merchant left his cars and also began a street sale. He ran into a snag however, when he "parked" his wares on the sidewalk and was haled into police court. He was told he could sell, provided he did not use the sidewalk and this he promised to do. It is claimed Connellsville people are getting fruit at the present time far cheaper than in many other places simply because of the fight.

Meet to Consider Co-operation in Coal Situation

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13. A conference has been called by the President's Fuel Committee, in cooperation with the United States Chamber of Commerce, to be held in Washington Friday, September 15, to be comprised of business, industrial railway and public utility representatives to consider various measures in anticipation of the coal situation. The conference will consider, specified by the organization of a voluntary campaign of:

John H. Lambertson, who arrived home Tuesday evening. It was one of eight reporting 100 per cent payment on its quota for missions and benevolences. For these causes the church contributed $2,211 during the fiscal year. It was thus entitled to a place on the conference honor roll.

With Rev. Lambertson at the conference were Mrs. Lambertson and Ernest Sidaway, delegate from the Connellsville church, and W. A. Hankins, delegate from the church at Summit, to which Rev. Lambertson also was returned as pastor. Rev. and Mrs. Lambertson returned by automobile with Rev. O. W. Bolton of Dunbar.

Rev. Lambertson is retained as pastor of the local church for the ninth year. During the past year he was largely instrumental in the erection of the church at Summit.

ROY E. JENSEN IS FREED OF CHARGE IMMORAL CONDUCT

Roy E. Jensen, superintending principal of the Luzerne township schools, and formerly principal at South Connellsville, was exonerated of any immoral conduct by Dr. Thomas E. Finegan, superintendent of public instruction following a hearing in Uniontown on Monday. It was the first case in the county wherein the state superintendent sat as judge and decided the merits of charges against a superintendent of schools. There is considerable friction among the school authorities in Luzerne township at the present time.

Four members of the West End Church, Ross Gilles, Miller Haney, Emerson Bell and Orin Lawrence, testified concerning Prof. Jensen's trips to the church yard on the nights of May 10 and 13, last. They charged no wrong doing, saying that Jensen got out of the car to look into the church window and outside of this sat in the car with a woman. ## INDIFFERENCE AS TO THE SO-CALLED COAL SITUATION

On Part of Consumers, Distributors and Public Press Generally.

PROSPECT OF SHORTAGE

Does Not Disturb, Now That the Mines Are Running Again; "Big Business" Trying to Prevent Run Away Market By Improving Railroad Conditions.

BY GEORGE H. CUSHING,
Special Correspondent of The Courier.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—An entirely new movement is springing up in connection with the coal industry. The consumers, the distributors and the press are beginning to be quite indifferent to the so-called coal situation.

This rather interesting and important fact was discovered just recently when some enterprising coal men wanted to get the people of the east interested in a supply of coal to be used in substitution for anthracite. These gentlemen, to their own satisfaction, figured it out about this way:

"The shortage of anthracite is about 25,000,000 tons. The people will have to use the same amount of coal they always have used for house heating. It will be an excellent opportunity therefore to sell substitutes for anthracite and to teach the people how to burn these substitutes."

These gentlemen started out on an enterprising campaign. It looked as promising as Colonel Mulberry Sellers famous eye wash. "There are millions of people in the east who have to use some sort of coal. They can't get anthracite. They will have to have some other sort of coal. So, as it seems, the market is wide open to use and there are millions in it."

The retailers looked the plan over and sat down upon it. They had, they said, no fear of a shortage. Of course, they admitted, there may be a shortage at some places, some time, "but it will not come near us."

Then the householders were appealed to. They took exactly the same point of view. After then, the newspapers were appealed to and they turned a deaf ear also.

The plain matter of fact is that the people are not disturbed about the coal situation. They are not the least little bit disturbed. They see that the mines are running again. They believe this will in time, produce enough coal. The people are not concerned. So far, all the excitement on the coal question in the entire nation is condensed here in Washington and mainly in one office in one building. There, of course, the excitement is tremendous. However, that gentleman usually does get excited rather easily.

It must be admitted that the figures rather tend to support the point of view of the people. The figures tend to show that, if you add the held over storage piles to the actual production since the first of January, we have had available for use this year a matter of 370,000,000 tons of bituminous coal against a matter of 255,000,000 tons produced in that same period in 1921. Unless we have a vastly larger consumption this year, that amount of coal ought to see us through with fair comfort.

Of course that production is only on the basis of about 33,750,000 tons per month or on the basis of 405,000,000 tons per year. We more than "got by" last year on less than 310,000,000 tons. It is hardly likely that we can do it again, since 1921 was the worst year of depression in our history. Also, we are short a matter of 25,000,000 tons of anthracite which will have to be made up somehow.

Seeing that we are not entirely out of the woods and seeing that the people are rather unaware of any danger to themselves, an interesting and interested group of gentlemen are figuring out an entirely new plan for the handling of coal this year. These gentlemen represent what might be called "big business" in America. They do not want to see another run away market in coal. They do not care to see legislation as the result of a run away market. They want, therefore, the coal industry to do a little planning on its own account and to arrange to move as much coal as possible to market.

There is to be about this thing nothing that suggests control. But, the effort will be to give the movement of coal every possible dispatch. In other words, these gentlemen are going to try to improve transportation rather than allow a shortage to become acute and then try to control prices.

Penn State Opens 68th Year, 1,000 New Students Enrolled

STATE COLLEGE, Sept. 13. The college auditorium was entirely inadequate to care for the more than 3,000 students, who were on hand this morning, when the Pennsylvania State College opened its doors for its 68th year. A third of the men and women were members of the incoming freshman class, many of whom were unable to get inside the doors of the building for the opening exercises. President John M. Thomas welcomed the new students to Penn State and said in part:

There is a very challenging expression in the American language has occurred to recent years "It's up to you." With that challenge Penn State greets you.

"There are a world of opportunities here, opportunities for culture and development of strong manhood, for professional attainment for rewarding friendships, for great service to your fellow students and to the college, for distinction in the world of college men. We are glad to welcome each one of you and we will all try to help you in our own way (in faculty in their way), your fellow students in theirs.

"But we cannot make a man for you, you must make good for yourself. It will take grit, patience hard work, common sense, and every man's quality you possess. But this end is worth the struggle, for real success in college almost inevitably means success after life. We wish you well but it's up to you.

During the past two days the great rush of unfolding the 1,000 new students and of arranging schedules for those of the upper classes has been going on from morning to night, and although the bulk of the registering closed with the opening of college this morning, late arrivals will still keep the office of the registrar on action for the balance of the week. It is estimated by Professor A. H. Espenshade college registrar, that there will be 3,500 men and women enrolled a Penn State this fall the largest number in the history of the institution. The annual Y. M. C. A. reception to the new students will be held on the campus on Friday evening of this week.

Fidac to Hold Next Meeting at Fourth Legion Convention

It was only three years ago that brief announcement came out of Paris of the organization of Fidac (Federation Interallipe Des Anciens Combattants)—Interallied Veterans' Federation.

And the casual readers wonder what new sort of alliance these former fighting men, brothers of a common cause, had formed among them. Little was said of objectives, of purposes. Men imbued with a passion for service, and holding a vision, were venturing upon an experiment.

But that was three years ago. Now, as final arrangements are being made for the third international conference of the organization, to be held just before and in conjunction with the fourth national convention of the American Legion, in New Orleans, Fidac, success attained, the promise of the future even brighter than the most sanguine had hoped for in 1920, is ready and eager to "tell the world." Down at New Orleans delegates from eight or more of the principal allied powers will gather for the convention. They will meet as representatives of their respective organizations of World War Veterans.

And to them leaders of affairs in their respective countries look for the writing of a new chapter in the history of world peace. The fighting men of many lands, who waged war as brothers-in-arms, work now toward bringing the peoples of the world into closer bonds of understanding, of sympathy, of effort in restoring for all time international amity. And at New Orleans, it is expected, will be born new and greater plans for the attainment of that object.

When the outline of Fidac was first broached, strong men of the veterans organizations in the allied and association nations seized on the idea as a mighty instrument designed for the achievement of the thing they emerged so lately from war's horror and havoc, dreamed of, prayed might come to pass—Permanent Peace. The first meeting was held in Paris in November, 1920. Authorized delegates from the United States, the British Empire, Italy, Belgium, Czecho-Slovakia, Roumania and Serbia (now Jugo Slavia) were present. Charles Bertrand of France was elected president; Cabot Ward of the American Legion was made first vice-president; G. R. Crossfield of the British Empire, second vice-president. An Italian delegate was made treasurer, a Belgian delegate, assistant, treasurer.

The Cashier.

A young woman went to call on a lady who had entertained her. The latter's five-year-old daughter, who was playing on the lawn, said: "Mamma isn't at home."

"I am very sorry," replied the young woman, "for I have come to pay my party call."

"Oh, I'll take the money," said the child promptly.

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"WATCH YOUR STEP" — Cullen Landis, one of the youngest leading men on the screen, will be seen in the roles of a city sport, a tramp and a small town clerk in the new Goldwyn picture, "Watch Your Step," which will be shown at the Soisson Theatre for two days, beginning today.

The story by Julian Josephson, written specially for Mr. Landis, shows how the city sector in trying to elude the police in his speedster, has a smash-up, disables a motorcycle policeman; and is later robbed of his clothes by a group of tramps. Playing the role his clothes assign to him, he rides the rods of a freight train and lands in a small western town. Here the atmosphere of the story becomes truly rural, and Mr. Landis finds himself in love with a charming bit of local color, played by Patsy Ruth Miller.

The incidents that develop the love story compel Mr. Landis to engage in a real old-fashioned fight with Raymond Cannon, knowing Mr. Landis' ability with his fists, and realizing that he is the hero, we guessed right the very first time. But there are other battles he must face and win before he and the girl keep time to the wedding march. These furnish many tense and, at times, pathetic moments, in a well made photoplay.

THE PARAMOUNT.

Romance and thrill imagination have been brought to life on the screen in the latest tale of Gouverneur Morris, "Yellow Men and Gold," a Goldwyn picture, which will be presented at the Paramount Theatre for two days, beginning today. It is a tale of action in which the incidents carry the players half way across the ocean to a lost island. A hunt for treasure that Robert Louis Stevenson would have delighted in, develops so many twists and turns that every moment is crowded with excitement.

All the elements of romance enter into "Yellow Men and Gold." A beautiful love story, a treasure quest, a terrific struggle between two groups of treasure seekers, the final nobleness of an adventuress that softens the memory of a life given to conscienceless scheming, are all welded together in a tale that, once under way, never lags in interest until the last scene flashes past on the screen.

THE ORPHEUM.

Marion Davies reaches a new plane in her art in "Enchantment," her newest picture which will be seen at the Orpheum Theatre today and Thursday. Cast as a pampered and petted society favorite, Miss Davies is a lovely miss whose power over her boy friends has gone to her head. She displays the flippancy of the character with skill. It is a role perfectly suited to Miss Davies' qualities.

"Enchantment" was adapted to the screen from the story "Manhandling Ethel," by Frank R. Adams. The keynote of the story is found in Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew," a scene from which is included in the production. Ethel Loyd, Miss Davies' father, was in the motor who has the role of Petruchio the means of breaking his haughty daughter's proud spirit. The actor consents to "tame" Ethel—and that is the beginning of his troubles.

Robert G. Vignola, whose last previous work for Cosmopolitan productions was "The Woman God Changed," directed the picture. In support of Miss Davies are Forrest Stanley, Tom Lewis, Edith Shayne, Maude Turner Gordon, Arthur Rankin and Corinne Barker.

APPRECIATING THE FIREMEN.

The volunteer firemen are making a very modest appeal to the people of the city when requesting donations of cakes and candy to be sold at the fire street fair tomorrow, Friday and Saturday evenings.

The object of the fair is to raise money to buy new uniforms which become a necessity at intervals just as it becomes necessary for ordinary civilians to buy new clothes once in a while. Having no source of income other than that provided by the citizens when acting as patrons of a street fair festival or similar entertainment, the firemen are entirely justified in soliciting contributions of articles which can be readily converted into cash.

To supply their needs in this particular ought to be a pleasure on part of the people. We have been somewhat slow to give substantial form to our appreciation of the services the firemen perform in protecting our homes and business houses from destruction by fire. They have so readily responded to all calls of this kind that we take it as a matter of course, overlooking the fact that the volunteers perform their work without expectation of compensation or reward other than comes in response to requests like they are making in the present instance.

That being their view of the matter there ought to be a very general as well as a generous compliance in order that the purpose they have in view in holding the street fair may be fully accomplished, and the boys made to feel that the people of the city appreciate the service they so willingly render.

BRYAN IN SEARCH OF ISSUES.

The not wholly unexpected announcement has been made by William Jennings Bryan that he will take an active part in the coming campaign, in preparation for his reappearance as the champion of pure and simple Democracy he has given it as his opinion that one of the leading issues will be the tax bill enacted by the Republican Congress, which he asserts takes the tax burden off the rich and places it upon the poor.

This assertion is quite Brynesque in that it is widely at variance with the facts, which the ex-Secretary of State could easily ascertain and which he probably already knows. His assertion recalls the no less ridiculous statements he made in his first Presidential campaign in 1896, when he patent loudly and widely proclaimed that the "goldbugs" had slipped into Congress and "in the dark of the night" committed "the crime of '73" for the purpose of enslaving the American people. For many years past Mr. Bryan has enjoyed the not altogether unique reputation of never letting facts interfere with his policy of appealing to the passions and class hatreds of the ignorant and malcontents in order to obtain their political support.

Mr. Bryan also suggests the possibility that the Tariff may become an issue in this campaign. And that arouses interesting speculation as to just what he would have to say regarding this subject. He was a member of the Ways and Means committee in the callow days of his political career. In that capacity, with the Democrats in control of Congress, he helped frame the Wilson Tariff for Revenue Act which measure produced more unemployment, more soup houses, more distress and more suffering among the working classes, more bankruptcies in the business world and more bank failures in the financial world than any other law ever placed upon the federal statute books.

In his campaign of 1894 in favor of the Democratic tariff, as called, he again promised his admiring hearers that a tariff would bring prosperity to all. The hard times unprecedented in the history of the country, which followed the enactment of the Wilson tariff which Bryan had helped to frame, caused the utter collapse of his prognostications in 1894 and led him to abandon the tariff and to substitute Free Silver as a vote-winning issue.

The waste of Mr. Bryan's reputation as an authority on economics and as an adviser of the common people is rather definitely measured by the wages he pays in his campaign of 1896, to the effect that the price of wheat and the price of silver go up and down together. The American farmers were not fooled by this hemmyrot and there is no reason to believe he will be any more successful in attempting to humbug them this year by some new and equally grotesque slogan.

In a recent interview Mr. Bryan frankly admitted the whole purpose of the Democratic campaign this year is to get control of the House in order that it may deadlock the government block legislation and hamper President Harding in order that some sort of an issue may be cooked up for the Democratic campaign in 1924. In other words, Bryan's idea, like that of most of his Democratic compatriots in politics, is not to have a definite forward-looking, constructive program which can and should be presented to the people for their decision, but to adopt a policy of being "against the government" upon all matters, a policy of obstruction and destruction, a policy of unfair, ignorant, untruthful and virulent criticism of everything the Republican administration attempts and without suggesting or formulating anything better.

Reduced to its last analysis Bryan idea of running the greatest business in the world—the United States government—is to elect a board of directors, half of whom believe in one policy and half in another then let them engage in a free for all fight while the business of the corporation goes to smash.

Unfit to Drive a Car

Philadelphia Bulletin

The State Highway Department has suspended the motor license of a man who ran his car across a railroad crossing at Sunbury, and then went to sleep with his car in dangerous proximity to the rails. Instead of his being fined a summons to a motorist who ignored a warning to stop from a crossing guard dodged around a truck which had stopped, and crashed into a train, wrecking his car and injuring two other occupants.

Official recognition of the truth that a motorist who is reckless of his own safety, is likely to be reckless of the safety of others, is to be commended. The driver who will take chances with a locomotive crossing his path, is not likely to reduce his speed or take precaution when a pedestrian steps off the curb at a crossing a little ahead. He is much more likely to blow his horn and put on a little more speed.

Highway policing authorities are gradually gaining in their appreciation of the potency of the licensing power—rather the power of revocation—in the curbing of reckless motor drivers. If that power were to be used as it deserves to be, and recurrent convictions for violation of motor regulations were automatically to result in revocation or suspension of licenses, reckless drivers would soon learn the worth of caution.

Just Folks

Edgar A. Guest.

THE PURPOSE.

Ten thousand born to hew and haul,
To dig the trench and build the wall,
Pace dreary duties day by day
Fashion the steel and mold the clay
Bear sorrow's mark and failure's blow
Summers hot sun and winters snow,
Keen disappointment's bitter sting
And seek through life's long wandering
What oft but very vainly appears,
The purpose of man's term of years.

Stripped of the pomp of outward pride,
In city walls, by country side,
All men place out of pain and strife
Some patchwork of the joy of life
A few to leadership attain
But most of us uncheered remain,
Bearing the duties of the day,
Counting the years that pass away,
Adding our little jobs unto
The work mankind is called to do.

What do we reap from all the years
Of strife and bitterness and tears,
A bit of laughter here and there,
A ribbon for the wife to wear,
Her smile of welcome and caress
These are the threads of happiness
True friends whose voices ring with cheer
Make sweet the days of toiling here,
And to possess a baby's smile
Makes every hour of care worth while.

We should regret a baby's birth
If care and anguish ruled the earth
Yet world-wide over smiles of joy
Welcome the new-born girl or boy
Into this realm of life where toil
And pain and burdens tear the years
Because, with all we've known and met
The trials that have made us fret,
The disappointment and defeat
Life to the human is sweet

REAL SCOTTDALE FAN PROTESTS INSULTS TO EDDIE WALL, UMPIRE

Declares His Town Shows Poor Sportsmanship in Displaying Sign.

SAYS BEST TEAM WON

An indignant echo of the Connellsville-Scottdale baseball game played here on Saturday is heard in a communication of a Mill Town fan who protests vigorously the insults being heaped on the shoulders of Eddie Wall, umpire, for his decision in the fourth inning when he called Smith, the Scottdale catcher, out for interference while the later was scoring from third. On the play in question two men were down and when Davin hit a high bounder toward third, Smith stepped wide from the path, rather hesitated, and then started home. His actions convinced the umpire he was purposely trying to interfere with the fielding of the ball and he was called out before reaching the rubber. The throw to first pulled Bloom off the bag and Davin was safe but Smith's actions had retired the side.

Of the decision in the 11th inning, none but the prejudiced have any doubt. The official scorer, Robert McDowell, who can take a seat among baseball experts at any time, said he clearly noted the ball was inside of third base. Scores of others on the first base line could see the same thing. The hit won the game for Connellsville, but Scottdale blames Wall for rendering a fair decision.

The communication, signed by a fan who has rooted for Scottdale "first, last and always" for 40 years, admits "the best team won," and, like the real sport he is, arises against the poor sportsmanship displayed by some of his fellowtownsmen who placed a sign on Pittsburg street, Scottdale, reading, "Scottdale 0, Ed Wall 1."

The letter follows:

"Mr. Sporting Editor,

"Dear Sir:—Being an owner of a season ticket that admits me to see at least 25 games of baseball played by the Scottdale Baseball Club, and one who has seen every game played by our team this year as well as those between Scottdale and Connellsville at Connellsville, I ask you to publish the enclosed letter in behalf of one of the fairest and squarest officials that ever made a decision in a ball game in this section.

"As a fan who saw the game played last Saturday between Scottdale and Connellsville and won by the latter team, I wish through your paper to protest the sign displayed in Pittsburg street, Scottdale, which reads, 'Scottdale 0, Ed Wall 1.'

"Thanking you in advance for the space I have taken, I remain,

"Yours for Clean Sportsmanship."

Under the caption of "Poor Sportsmanship," he raps both the fans and directors:

"Having been a booster for the Scottdale Baseball team since the first game and a resident of the town for almost 40 years and having seen many of the different teams play in that time, also one of the many fans who made the trip to Connellsville to root for Scottdale, I wish to state that I had a position where I could see every play and I agree that Mr. Wall, whom I consider one of the squarest and fairest officials I ever saw work a game, did right when he called Smith out in the fourth inning for interference and in the last inning when he called the hit made by the Connellsville third baseman fair as the ball passed over the inside of the third base sack.

"When Smith was called out for interference there were two men down. Why should he go out of the path as far as he did and stop when any baseball player knows it would not do him any good to stop like he did, as the logical play is to first base in such a case.

"This sign, trying to 'pass the buck' to the umpire's shoulders when we were fairly beaten and the displaying of it is not only an insult to Mr. Wall, whom I have known for years and whose reputation as an official is above reproach, but is a disgrace to the sportsmanship of the town, and to those directors of the baseball club who stood by and allowed such a sign be placed when they could have prohibited it. They should be ashamed, and it is enough to cause any fair minded fan to arise to protest.

"We were beaten by the better team and as long as Kozar was or will be able to pitch as he did in this game, any team will be lucky to win from him so let us be real sports and admit we were beaten and all because of 'too much Kozar' and not try to pass it on to the 'ump.'

"I speak for only a fan who has been for Scottdale first, last and always, but I am ready and always will admit when the better team wins and I voice the sentiments of many. If these directors of the team who would not stand for this insult to Mr. Wall would do the right thing they would see that this sign is removed and an apology made to Mr. Wall, whom no one can say is a homer but has the reputation of being one of the fairest and squarest officials in this section and whom a few petty gamblers can not influence."

The St. Louis Americans gained on the Yankees yesterday while the latter were idle, by defeating Detroit again. The score was 8-6. Sisler, who needs to hit safely in just one more game to tie the record of Tyrus Cobb, who made hits in 40 consecutive games in 1911, was out of the Browns' line-up yesterday with a sprained shoulder. He may not get back in again this season, it is reported.

There were no games played in the National League yesterday, Boston and Pittsburg being the only teams scheduled. Rain caused a postponement of that game.

* * * *

Today Boston and Pittsburg will endeavor to play and the Giants meet Chicago. The Cubs will not be a snap for the McGrawmen. St. Louis Americans should find soft picking in the Boston Redsox, while the Yankees are going to Chicago. Even if St. Louis should win today and the Yankees lose, the New Yorkers will still maintain a slight margin for first place.

High School's football team held another scrimmage last evening. Coach Wine will have his boys sufficiently hardened to take Youngwood's measure Saturday.

In the center, black satin, gold tinsel ribbon and small fringed bows—red and green—make a gay chapeau. A camel's hair felt on the extreme right has been trimmed with edge and cord of shirred satin. Baboliuk brown is the shade of both hat and trimming.

AMONG NEW BLOUSE STYLES

Wearable Garments of the Season Include Crepe de Chine Models in Varied Colors.

When one applies the word wearable to new blouse styles it means more than the average reader is apt to glean and it is with an idea of stressing the value of this adjective that it is emphasized One company has a comprehensive showing of blouses that are uniformly wearable and attractive. This manufacturer has concentrated on one price for all blouses, and they present tempting array of popular numbers

Venise and St. Gall laces are used in profusion on the ruffled fronts of many frilled blouses. These are shown in white, pink and bisque georgettes of a good quality A silk of crepe character has been employed in those overblouse models on middy lines. Yarn embroidery in bright colors makes most appropriate trimmings for these outdoor styles

Crepe de chine blouses show a favoritism for medallion effects in their beaded embellishment and the wide color range in which they make their appearance is one of the selling features of these styles. Cinder ermine canna and porcelain blue are a few of those shades most in demand at the moment

In blouse numbers, with the literal meaning of the word crepe de chine has been combined with a knitted fabric that forms the Peter Pan collar cuffs, girdle and polo tie that finishes it The full blouse effect of this model and the entire aspect of the knitted trimming make an ideal number

Youngstown, Ohio—"Last fall I began to feel mean and my back hurt me and I could hardly do my little bit of housework I was layed out when I would just sweep one room and would have to rest. It could have to put a cushion behind me when I would sit down and at night I could not sleep unless I had something under my back I had awful cramps every month and was just nearly all in Finally my husband said to me one day, 'Why don't you try Lydia E Pinkham's medicine?' and I said, 'I am willing to take anything if I could get well again.' So I took one bottle and a second one and felt better and the neighbors asked me what I was doing and said, 'Surely it must be doing you good all right.' I have just finished my eighth bottle and I cannot express to you how I feel, the way I would like to If you can use this letter you are welcome to it and if any woman does not believe what I have written to be true, she can write to me and I will describe my condition to her as I have to you."—Mrs ELMER HEASLEY 541 S Jackson St, Youngstown Ohio

How Diamonds Are Mined

A rush such as front on America know in its free for all over bit in this age to pick out claims in newly discovered diamond field was occasioned in recent dispatches from South Africa This new diamond country opens up possibilities of rival to the great Kimberly diamond field in the same general region the world's greatest source of the sparkling white gems

The methods of mining diamonds at Kimberly which may be followed in the new fields if the formation proves the same are outlined in a bulletin from the National Geographic Society

The mines at Kimberly says the bulletin are in very ancient volcanoes which ages ago lost all semblance of activity But during their youth the great heat and pressure of these volcanoes created gigantic laboratories in their depths in which thousands of the hard white carbon crystals which are diamonds were created The precious little lumps are embedded in a great volume of worthless rock known as "blue ground" and under old conditions were as hard to find as the proverbial needle in a haystack But just as a clever search could probably locate his needle with a powerful magnet despite the straw so engineers have evolved mechanical means cleverly to separate the few tiny diamonds from the many tons of dirt in which they are hidden

The effectiveness with which nature has concealed the crystals is evidenced by the fact that the blue ground brought up from the depths of the mine is spread out in the open for four months or more at the weather. The diamonds are perfectly safe for officials who have walled off over the weathering Long fumes of experience have proved that they have never come to light in this way At the end of the period the ground weathers it crumbles and great harrows like those used in the dry farms of the West are dragged over it to facilitate the process

Eventually the material is broken down into relatively fine particles It is then taken by track level to the mechanical plant of the mine for treatment The ground is mixed with water in great mixing machines and passed over series of fine wire meshing

When as much as possible of the foreign material has been removed in this way it consists residue containing the diamonds is passed over slopping vibrating tables covered with thick grease Because of some little understood physical property diamonds stick to the grease while the worthless material flows over the edge of the tables Later wise with its load of crystals is then scraped into a perforated container and heated by steam The grease melts away and leaves the small but brilliantly white objects of the search of world

How widely spaced the diamonds are in their matrix of earth could be shown best perhaps by a comparison of volumes The earth taken out in a year by the largest flying machine in the field would form a cube more than 130 feet in each dimension This would fill a large city block to the height of more than 30 stories The diamonds total in this amount with would fill only two or three desk drawers or a coffee box less than three feet in each dimension But these few pecks of stones for which a mountain was moved are worth perhaps in excess of $25 000 000

One of the most striking features of the mining of diamonds by the companies in Kimberly is the size of the native labor employed Since diamonds are usually found by those native laborers are employed who will agree to "enlist" for at least three months and remain for that period when not in the mines or on the floors—will live in a walled enclosure In the largest compound covering more than four acres 3 000 men live Not only are these compounds surrounded by high walls but they also are overlooked by fine wire netting so that diamonds cannot be thrown over to confederates

Laborers entering or leaving a compound must go through a procedure not unlike that when entering a foreign country having strict immigration and customs laws They must pass a health examination and if diseased are rejected or placed in quarantine Only certain articles may be taken into a compound and no boots shoes or other hard or solid material may be taken out—only clothing which has been searched In the large cities of the compounds where a miner is free to have chosen to stay for years are stores churches a school a hospital and dispensary athletic grounds and a swimming pool The manager of this compound is a sort of mayor and judge rolled into one and is called upon to settle innumerable disputes

Periwinkle House

By OPIE READ

ILLUSTRATED BY R.H. LIVINGSTONE

COPYRIGHT, THE BELL SYNDICATE, INC.

"Just a little while longer we stay in this place, eh? Then we meet Monsieur Hayes in Memphis an' you marry him, an' he take you away for the honeymoon, per'aps to France. An' he buy you the silk dresses, an' many beautiful things. An' then I come and join you, an' we all live happy—eh?"

"But—but I do not like Monsieur Hayes!"

"Ha! You learn soon. He is a fine man. Wait till we see him in Memphis an' you know him better. You will love him then, an' be happy. . . . I go now. Au revoir, ma petite."

Stephe went down to his boat, feeling that he had outwitted her interference of the swamp, and she ran back to her room to gaze through the window. But soon she came out with a big leatherbound book of plays and put it on the ground beneath the oaks. Then with a broom made of stiff twigs she swept the ground, mustering a caterpillar swinging down and carried it away out of the range of her stage. From the house she brought a narrow strip of rush matting, spread it beneath a tree, raising one edge as if to form of it a sort of back, a sofa. From the house she brought a box to serve for a table, and from out beyond the palisade of cane she gathered lilies, plucking from the bank a great bloom that looked like a trumpet. These she hung on the low-swaying branches of her playhouse trees, or with sharp thorns pinned them to the rugged bark, a curtain to drape the wall above her "parcond-like" divan. She sat down and waited a long time. The cane stirred, and she seized her book, opened where a lily-stem marked her favorite play, and made herself believe that she was reading.

It was only a breeze that rustled in the cane. She could hear it now, listening amid the glossy leaves above her. Why should she be impatient? She could wait. Had she not waited night after night for her father's footsteps? Had she not sat in the house, alone and not afraid, when the storm tangled the tops of the cypress trees and lashed the bayou mad? . . . She had not heard a sound, but looking by chance she saw Drace coming through the cane, and she sprang up to meet him, the play-book pressed against her bosom.

"Nadine."

"Monsieur!"

"Don't call me 'Monsieur.' Call me Virgil."

She dropped her book. He bent to pick it up, but she snatched it from beneath his reaching hand and stood back from him.

"Oh, it was you, then! It was you the so strong man that would break my father's wrist. It was you!"

"Nadine, it was not to hurt him. With a knife he would have killed an old man; and then they would have hanged him. Nadine, my other hand held yours, to protect you."

"It must be true. I will believe you—Virgil. I know you brave and not wish to hurt an old man. No, you could not do that. You will forgive me, yes?"

She held forth her hand and taking it tenderly, he touched it with his lips; and like a princess she accepted the homage due her rank and her beauty.

"Come, now, we play," she said, sweetly laughing. "And it must be free, like the boy and the girl. But first you sit down here and tell me."

She led him to her "sofa" and they sat down, leaning back against the tree.

"Tell you what, Nadine?"

"About the great big world you know so well."

"I don't know the big world, as you think it. But I know the universe as I feel it. It is here."

About her finger she sat wrapping the lily-stem that had marked her favorite play. Was it that she did not understand his reference to his universe? No, for she shook her head, and with a sigh that did not mean weariness.

"The universe could not be on this little island."

"It could be held in your dimpled hand."

"Oh, my hand dimpled!" She held it in front of him, touched his brow with the palm.

"It is not soft enough to be dimpled, Virgil."

"I would kiss it soft."

He caught her wrist, touched the tip of each finger with his lips and then kissed the palm. She laughed, drawing back her hand.

"You must not do that. We must talk of other things."

"Yes, but first let me tell you of my dream."

"I do not like to hear dreams. We always forget them and make up something we did not dream. . . . But did you not tell me once?"

"No, I don't think so. In my dream you touched my heart with a torch and set it afire."

"But I would not do that. I would save you from the fire. Ah, and Tony he has gone to the city, but when he comes back we must watch close. . . . One time he tried to take my hand, and he said he would kiss me. And I say: 'That may be, Tony. You can kiss me because you stronger. But when you have, then you be dead.' And he knew that I speak what was to come."

"We care nothing for him. Let him keep out of my way. . . . And when I saw you at the ball, I knew that you were the girl with the torch. And do you know what I said to myself? Let me whisper it to you."

"There is no one to hear."

"I said: 'You are to be my wife.' And just then you turned about and looked at me."

"But I did not see you."

"Come, now, you must have seen me."

"Well, perhaps. But I did not say: 'I am to be his wife.' No, I did not say that. And it cannot be, Virgil."

"But it is going to be, all the same, and you know it. Why, what is all this universe for if that is not to be? Why was this little island cast up here? Why did the word ring forth: 'Let there be light'? It is part of the plan of creation, and nothing can prevent it. . . . I shall have to wait, but I—"

"Will wait a long time, Virgil. But we must not talk like that. Come—let us forget such things."

She put her spell on him, and he was a boy again. Hand in hand they walked about, pretending that the acre island was miles and miles in extent. Then was a day-star shooting unseen across the sky, and then a heavy sentence fell upon him. It was time for him to go. In the cane she stood with him where his canoe was moored. He held her hand, drawing her toward him, but she took it away.

"No—no, you must not . . . Quick Virgil, you must go now. The sun is low."

NO PUT OUTS AT FIRST

Among the first basemen in baseball who have landed through a game without making a single putout are McCauley, who played with the Washington Americans in 1901, who didn't have anything to do on August 6 that year; Jiggs Donohue, who died in an asylum in Columbus, O., July 10, 1913, and who made his record while with the Chicago White Sox, May 23, 1909. It will be remembered that Donohue accepted the greatest number of chances in a season in 1907. Jiggs accepting 1,080 chances in 157 games. Artie Hofman, while playing for the Cubs against Pittsburgh, June 24, 1910, went through a game without a putout and only one assist.

FIGHTERS GET LAZY BY REMAINING IDLE

Don't Fight Often Enough, Says Old-Time Scrapper.

Tom Sharkey Expresses Belief That James Jeffries or Joe Choynski Could Have Easily Defeated Jack Dempsey.

Tom Sharkey, the old-time heavyweight, does not think so much of modern glove fighters. In a recent conversation he said: "These present-day champions are all right, but I don't think they compare with the old ring men who really knew what the word 'fight' meant. Dempsey has to come to his opponent to be effective and that is just what Jeff liked. He slaughtered every one who did it. Another man who I think could easily have beaten Dempsey was Joe Choynski. He fought like Jeffries and he was there when in his prime. In my opinion there is only one of the old-timers whom Dempsey could have beaten that is Jim Corbett. I think he would have knocked out Corbett as easily as Jeffries would have beaten him. I am not underestimating Dempsey. I won $2,500 the day he whipped Willard, and I seconded Jack the day he stopped Carl Morris. In my opinion Willard was not a coward, but he lacked a fighting heart, which every fighter must have if he ever hopes to win laurels in the prize ring. All that Willard was interested in was the cash, and Tex Richard set a record when he hung up $100,000 for the big Westerner in his championship contest with Dempsey. The trouble with boxers today is that they don't work hard enough when they reach the top. When they gain the championship they become actors and let their strength ebb away at some soft job. Dempsey is a champion today, but he would have received little mention when I was fighting."

THE United States Rubber Company—makers of U. S. Royal Cords—were first to conceive, make and announce the balanced tire. A tire in which there is such complete unity of action in tread and carcass that neither will give way before the other.

First to conceive, make and announce a complete line of tires—a tire for every need of price and use under one standard of quality.

First to tell the public about the good and bad in tire-retailing. (You remember the phrase "Go to a legitimate dealer and get a legitimate tire.")

Studebaker

BIG-SIX TOURING $1650

THE dependability of the Studebaker Big-Six is due to correct design, the use of the best materials money can buy and the highest standard of workmanship.

Studebaker stands in absolute control of the quality of the materials at all times, because Studebaker makes in its own plants such vital parts as motors, transmissions, axles, frames, bodies, tops, castings, forgings, stampings, etc. The parts-makers' profits on such items are, therefore, eliminated and only one manufacturing profit is included in Studebaker prices.

The Big-Six is distinctive in appearance with its handsome body and many refinements. It offers genuine comfort through its long semi-elliptic springs, restful 9-inch seat cushions, fine upholstery and shock absorbers. It is economical to buy and own, and enjoys a high resale value.

The new price of $1650 for the Big-Six Touring car is the lowest at which it has ever sold. Yet the quality is actually better than ever and this means a value that is duplicated nowhere else in the field of fine cars. You won't find greater satisfaction at any price.

The Big-Six Touring car provides ample room for seven. When not in use the auxiliary seats fold neatly out of sight —always ready for instant use when you need them.

The name Studebaker is our greatest asset and your best protection.

Wright-Metzler Opening An Unqualified Success

The doors of Wright-Metzler Store closed last night upon the most interesting and successful fall opening day in the history of the firm. Planned on a far greater scale than any of its predecessors, it was successful far beyond the most sanguine hopes of anyone concerned. It is no overestimate of fact to say that it was an event the like of which Connellsville had never seen before.

Two things there were that claimed the lion's share of glory—the window displays and the style show. This latter proved itself to be the revelation of the day. The Misses Eliza Bittermore, Margaret Dull, Estelle Foltz, Addison Dunn, Estelle Martin, and Mary Rohm—all local girls—served as models and delighted the spectators with their air of calm poise and graceful charm. No less entrancing were the costumes that they wore, each one emphasizing some salient point in the new mode of autumn, '22. Appearing first in frocks and suits representative of the store's less expensive apparel, they followed Dame Fashion through her day, with things for street wear, things for dress—finally ending the promenade with a gorgeous array of the new modes in evening apparel.

Though these modes caused many a murmur of surprised delight, the factor that created the greatest amount of comment was the uniformly reasonable price of the apparel that was displayed. Evening gowns that could distinguish any banquet hall or ball room were presented at prices so low one could scarcely believe one's ears. The same was true of coats, of suits and other dresses. So the style show did more than entertain—it enlightened. It assured the woman of moderate income that she could fill her every apparel need without straining, in any way, the family purse.

The window displays were probably the most gorgeous that Connellsville has ever known. A rich, deep autumn tint, carried out on a cloth that glistened like burnished copper, formed the background. A bit of fall foliage here, a spray of green there was used for contrast. It is really difficult to describe the beauty of this effect and the aura of elegance and distinction it cast over all the merchandise on display. One window concerned itself with exclusive (and surprisingly inexpensive) women's apparel. Another was devoted to fall modes for men. A third furthered the rapidly growing vogue of lace. All were planned and executed in a manner to be expected only of one of the more exclusive apparel shops on Fifth avenue, New York.

The giving away of 1,000 baskets of groceries in the North Pittsburg street store proved again that Connellsville folk appreciate a value. North Pittsburg street began to take on the aspect of a Saturday evening promenade early Tuesday morning so filled was it with folk hurrying to share in the bonanza. The store buzzed with activity all day long and, there is reason to believe, won many a new friend and patron. A particularly complete and interesting demonstration of Heinz products won much attention.

Main floor departments were busy showing new fabrics, trimmings and autumn accessories of dress and footwear. Men were interested in fall displays of clothing and haberdashery. Homefurnishings held the stage in the North Pittsburg street store, on the second floor and in the store downstairs. The hats featured in the style show made the millinery department the mecca of many interested women. Every section of the store valiantly did its bit in contributing to the interest of a glorious day.

Folks at Wright's, it is said, went home last night tired but happy.

But not too tired to thank the people of the district for the interest they have displayed in the helpful activities of Wright-Metzler Store. Fall opening day, they say, was but a forerunner of many more events, quite as interesting, still to come.

WRIGHT-METZLER CO.

This Moderate Price Range Brings Beautiful Things to Wear This Fall

$25.00 to $39.75

TO BE the accepted Fashion Center of a city sometimes seems to have its difficulties. Because some creation is stunning in style and fabric folks may think that it is necessarily high in price. That such is not the case is Fall's most pleasant message from Wright Metzler Store. There are many beautiful things to be had at prices ranging from $25 to $39.75.

Frocks

Because a frock is less expensive need not mean that it must surrender one iota of modishness and charm.

At $25 to $39.75 one finds an unusual collection of silk dresses—some in Canton Crepe, a few in Crepe Romaine and other materials—which feature the draped hip, new skirt lengths and a diversity of sleeve treatment altogether entrancing.

Bead girdles, plaqued panels and bright Indian embroideries are other style notes that one would not expect to find on other than expensive dresses. Wool frocks at these prices feature dull braids and brilliant embroideries and include even a Peggy Paige frock in a new chenille check that many a miss will find altogether appealing.

Suits

The tailored woman is quite at home when it comes to choosing a suit very reasonable in price.

She may have a Tweed in a novel plaid effect if she so desires. Or a strictly tailored creation in navy blue, preferably fashioned in a durable Twill fabric. Both at $25.

Coats

Coat prices begin at $19.75 and bring you a really alluring variety of choice.

One's favorite model may be loose or it may closely follow one's figure with its youthful lines.

Tweeds and a stout fabric named "Men's Wear" are the fabrics that you will like the best. They will keep you warm for all of Winter's blaster. They will keep you happy because Fashion has approved of them.

Especially when they are fur trimmed and bring you so much comfort at such very tiny prices.

Apparel Section—Second Floor.

First the Corset—

"First the corset, then the gown" is a formula that will appeal to every well dressed woman. We are ready to help you choose the model that will help your figure conform to the new silhouette of Fall.

Gossard corsets forget stiff ways of other days and confine the hips a bit, the while they leave the waist comparatively free. They come in plain and brocaded coutil and are $2.75 to $25.

Second Floor.

The Gowns In Our Opening Window

You saw them, of course, and marvelled at their beauty.

You noticed how one glittered with the beads now so popular in Paris. And how the other emphasized the ever growing vogue of lace. There is one important factor you may have missed. They were both priced only—

$49.75

New Angles in Blouses

The "Baskoat" is very new. You find it here, modeled after the manner of the overblouses of other years, with quaint bead trimmings, at $5.95.

Other Fall blouse modes favor crepe de chine and lace net—come in black, mohawk, cafe, navy, henna and bisque—and feature reasonable prices.

They are $5.95—$8.95—$10.75 and $14.75.

Second Floor.
